Public researchers seek campus group

By Dick Lee

Supporters of Ralph Nader style public interest research will try to implement a program on the Wartburg campus during the next few weeks. Local organizers met with state representatives and received a $100 grant from Student Senate Wednesday night.

Senate's money will be used for an educational campaign to acquaint students with ISPIRG (Iowa Student Public Interest Research Group), which is patterned after a successful program established by Nader representatives last year in Minnesota.

participate. In Minnesota, only about thirty per cent ask for their money back, according to ISPIRG representative Pat Huston of Cornell College.

In Iowa, the plan is already in effect at Central and Coe Colleges as well as Cornell, with final administrative approval pending at St. Ambrose College and Drake University.

AT WARTBURG, as at the other schools, first step will be an educational campaign. When students are familiar with ISPIRG, they will be asked to sign petitions requesting the increase in fees.

Coordinated by junior Sig Smeby, and senior Dave Boedy, the Wartburg committee has completion of petitioning by a March Board of Regents meeting as its goal.

According to Miss Huston, drives at the three state universities will soon have enough signatures to request administrative approval, and educational programs are under way too at several small schools.

UNDER THE Minnesota plan, students contribute to the research group through an increase in fees at their schools.

Teams of professionals (including lawyers and scientists) then use the money to investigate such potential problem areas as consumer pricing, health care, county jail operation, municipal annexation proposals and pollution.

Fees are refunded to those students who do not wish to

Committee chooses heads for 72-73 campus media

Appointments for head positions in Wartburg publications and broadcast media were made by the Publications and Radio Committee Tuesday afternoon.

Junior Brenda Otto was named Trumpet editor for 1972-73. She presently serves as managing editor.

Next year's Castle literary magazine will be headed by sophomore Mark Lehmann, who is the present associate editor.

Junior John Kusiej, presently news director of KWAR-FM, will take over as station manager next fall.

Selections of the Fortress editor was delayed but prospects will apply next month.

Change in library name to honor former director

Wartburg's newly expanded library will be renamed Engelbrecht Library in honor of the man who headed Wartburg Normal College. Dedication is expected to take place at Commencement in May even though completion of the new addition will be in early March.

Director August Engelbrecht, known among his colleagues as "Brick," was associated with Wartburg Normal as a faculty member for 44 years and as director for 24.

He was instrumental in putting Wartburg Normal on its feet in terms of growth, a key factor in the decision of the American Lutheran Church to move Wartburg College from Clinton in 1933 and merge it with Wartburg Normal at Waverly.

Present student reaction to the new library facilities has been termed "favorable," according to Head Librarian Mahlon Peterson.

Peterson attributes an increase of two hundred students using the library daily to "the something-for-everyone atmosphere."

"We have hard-backed chairs for those who want to sit up and study, and soft ones for those who want to sleep," he said candidly.

Peterson foresees few difficulties in completing the addition, but adds, "It's like a new car—we have to get the bugs out."

New library hours taking effect today are 7:30 a.m. - 11:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 7:30 a.m. - 10 p.m. Friday, 8 a.m. - 10 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. - 11:30 p.m. Sunday.

Physicist to speak

Nuclear physicist Ralph Krone of the University of Kansas will discuss recent experiments conducted at the institution's Nuclear Physics Laboratory on Feb. 23 at 3:30 p.m. in Room 220, Becker Hall of Science.

An authority on low energy nuclear structure, Krone has headed a research team

Film series to show 'Wild Strawberries'

Blue Monday Film Series will present "Wild Strawberries," often acclaimed as Ingmar Bergman's best loved film, on Monday, Feb. 21, at 7:30 p.m. in Voecks Auditorium.

The theme, incarnated in successive generations of the main character, is death-in-life, an emotional and spiritual withering. "Wild Strawberries" deals with old age and the need for self knowledge.

The film's construction is basically that of a dream sequence.

Alpha Chi will meet

Alpha Chi will sponsor a discussion of "Wild Strawberries" Monday night. Part of the Blue Monday series, the classic was directed by Ingmar Bergman.

The film will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Voecks Auditorium, with the discussion scheduled for about 9. An Alpha Chi business meeting will be held before the film at 7:10 in the Becker Hall Seminar Room.

Band performance to spotlight creativity

Wartburg Band's annual Winter Concert will feature two original creations in the forms of a dance and a special arrangement of a Beethoven composition.

The annual concert will be presented this Sunday at 8 p.m. in Neumann Auditorium. Students and faculty members need only their activity ticket to be admitted.

The arrangement for band of Beethoven's "Romance, Op. 50," originally meant for orchestra, was part of a music class project of Kathy Harmening Salge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Harmening of Waverly, while she was a student here.

Another selection in the band's repertoire will be highlighted by sophomore Alice Gundacker's original dance performed to Warren Benson's "Solitary Dancer." Miss Gundacker describes it as a "modern dance because it's such a modern piece."

Her background training came in the form of four to five years of ballet lessons in her earlier years.

A baritone horn solo by senior Arlen Ottmar will be presented in "Come Back to Sorrento."

A special method of presentation will be utilized in Stradella's "Echo Concerto." Antiphonal instrumental choirs will be scattered throughout the auditorium.

Language houses to provide cultural living

Language houses, living-learning situations for broadening cultural backgrounds of foreign language majors and other interested students, are presently under consideration by housing planners.

Until now, foreign language students have been offered summers abroad, tutorials and study abroad during their junior years, according to Dr. A. R.

Riep, head of the foreign language department.

"This new housing proposal would give students the opportunity to keep alive what they have learned," Riep said.

Co-ed housing proposals led to the possibility of setting up a German House in one of the manors on an experimental basis next year.

According to James Moy, director of student affairs, this proposal is a "subproposal of the co-ed housing prospect and will be subject to approval by the Board of Regents.

"The prospect sounds encouraging. Interest groups of this kind should be permitted to live in this manner," he added.

Possibilities for establishing a combination French-Spanish

House are being scrutinized with hopes that if enough students show interest, the two factions will establish separate units.

German House, designed for 24 students at maximum capacity, has room for approximately twelve more students. A committee consisting of freshmen Jeanne Gunn, Deb Leichtle and Steve Miede are presently exploring student interest.

SBP speaks

West decries irresponsibility

All around the nation, students keep demanding more rights while others don't understand why. I'm not quite sure why students do this when some aren't mature enough to cope with what they have now. Two prime examples are here at Wartburg.

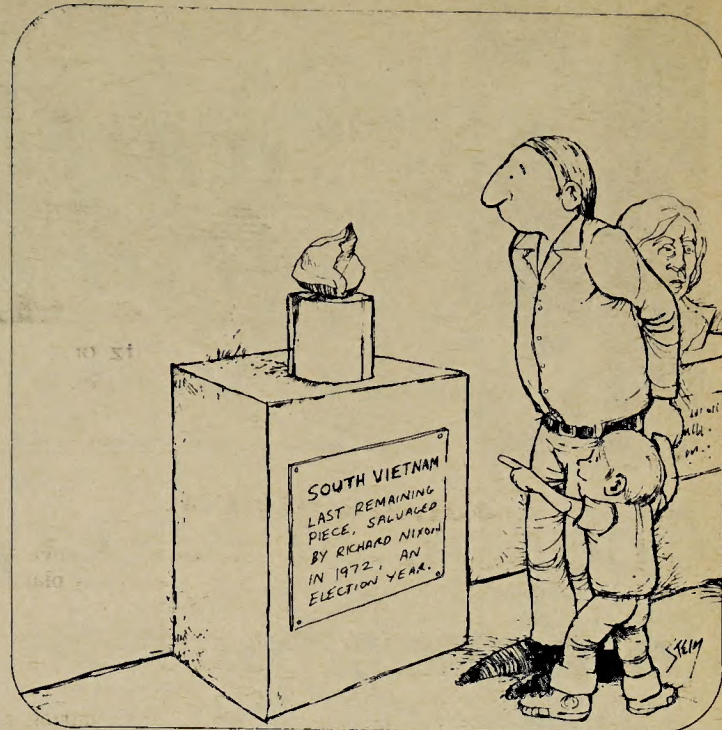

Student Senate had pinball machines installed in the Den last year. Wartburg took half the profits with the other half going to the agent. Wartburg's money was divided like this: one-quarter to the Den, one-quarter to the Student Union and one-half to the Student Senate, which was put into the minority scholarship fund. Approximately $600 was taken in for Wartburg between September and December.

The machines were taken out in January because of the damage incurred by them. These machines are a good fund-raiser for college activities as can be seen by the figures. Student Senate has decided to put these machines in the Den again on a trial-and-error basis. Abuse of the machines will result in permanent removal of them.

Another example is what happens at dances. Our Snow Weekend Dance could have been successful if not for a couple of incidents. One was that money was ripped-off from the ticket taker. How? Good question! Secondly, people sneak in in every conceivable way. Social Activities is not trying to make a profit, they just want to keep a working balance. The way Social Activities is here at Wartburg, we can't afford these kinds of occurrences.

So you say you give a damn about others--show it!

Ombudsman

By Hank Wellnitz

The following letter is an initial step of an investigation into the Financial Aids office. The investigation was prompted by numerous complaints and much concern on the part of many students.

Mr. James Lenguadoro, Director
Financial Aids Office
Wartburg College

Dear Jim,

The Ombudsman's office has received numerous complaints about the operations and procedures of your office. I have taken these under advisement and at this time wish a complete explanation and clarification of these matters. In relating these concerns to you I will proceed from some general observations to more specific cases.

I have had many conversations with students who have been extremely upset through their dealings with your office. Many have been in tears when they have talked with me. They feel that they have been treated unfairly and inconsistently. For many, it has been an extremely dehumanizing experience to deal with your office. Many students have been dissatisfied with explanations as to why aid was denied and more generally, do not understand your criterion of decision in cases.

More specifically, students have been upset over the area involving campus employment. Students do not understand why those with a lower number on the job waiting list get employment in some cases before those with a higher number. Students feel that there is no standard set of eligibility standards for financial aid cases and that favoritism is often practiced by your office. In addition many feel that there is no appeal process once they have been denied and still feel that they are eligible for aid.

It is difficult to gather specific complaints about your office since many feel that if they complain their aid will be terminated, however; I have numerous cases that testify to those areas of concern listed above.

In light of this, I request explanation and clarifications of the following areas of concern:

1. I request written procedures for application and process concerning all types of aid including campus employment.
2. I request criterion for eligibility in all types of aid.
3. More specifically, I request the procedure followed when a student is denied aid and how this is explained.
4. I request a detailed explanation of how students are chosen for campus employment through the work-study program.
5. I request the figures on the number of students who have applied for aid through the various programs, the number accepted and denied in each program plus the amount of money involved.
6. I request an explanation of any existing appeal process for those students who have been denied. In addition to this I wish to know who your office is directly responsible to.

I am sure that the explanation and clarification of these areas of concern will give rise to many additional questions, and in light of this, I request written answers to these concerns within one week so that we can begin to solve some of these problems and disseminate this information to students.

Thank you for your concern, and be advised that our office will be more than willing to cooperate with you in solving these problems.

Sincerely,
Hank Wellnitz

I will publish the correspondence I requested for the Financial Aids office in next week's column.

Letters to the editor

To the Editor:

We'll be honest. The "advertisement" in last week's Trumpet concerning the Crisis Line and its intentions was misleading in its phrasing. Curiously, it led one to believe that those serving on the line were in reality those in need of telephone referral.

Also, it should be made clear that as a community service organization (JZY II), we are not subjugated to campus religious affairs.

Last of all, and unfortunately, none of the coordinators of the line were consulted as to the printing of the above-mentioned article.

John Walter, Director, JZY II

Bill Anderson, Tom Guy, Crisis Line Coordinators

To the Editor:

On Feb. 10, 1972, at 12 o'clock Central Time (11 o'clock Rocky Mountain Time), we were extremely upset when we could not complete our phone call to a Wartburg extension because the switchboard was closed. We were told by the operator at Wartburg that if we completed our call, our conversation would be monitored and disconnected if in fact it was not an emergency.

We cannot understand why this should have been -- the switchboard operator was on duty -- why could she not have placed our long distance out-of-state call? That call was very important to us and we cannot comprehend why such a policy regarding late night calls should exist. We would definitely like to see a change in this rule.

Linda Medberry
Marilyn Roepke
Diane Debner

Editor's Note:

According to Head Operator Deleva Oppermann, no one was on duty when the call was placed. Calls after midnight are routed to the room of an off-duty operator on week nights and to the Security Office on weekends.

Switchboard policy for the last fifteen years has been to handle only emergency calls when the system is closed, Mrs. Oppermann explained. Operators are at the switchboard from 6:30 a.m. to midnight.

Welfare Answering Service informs, advises recipients

By Judy Newell

Welfare Answering Service (W.A.S.), an outgrowth of the publication of the Welfare Rights Handbook, has helped an estimated 450 people, including out-of-state welfare recipients. Robert Lohman of the Social Work Department and eight students operate the project.

W.A.S. was begun for two reasons: to try to inform welfare recipients of their legal rights and to make sure they get them. W.A.S. keeps track of changes in welfare laws, and also prints and mails them to every person who has a handbook, according to Lohman.

STUDENTS ANSWER phone calls and letters which now average 30 to 40 a week. W.A.S. answers inquiries personally by a return phone call or letter, enclosing a photocopy of the welfare laws.

Replies sometimes require research and calls to other organizations such as the Bremer County Department of Social Services.

Most calls the W.A.S. receives are from people who don't understand or know welfare laws. Many times the recipients are not aware of the benefits to which they are entitled or don't understand treatment received at the welfare department.

In addition to the eight students manning the W.A.S. phone, approximately twenty other social work majors are involved in distributing handbooks to Welfare recipients.

GROUPS OF FIVE or six of these students travel to the larger Iowa cities and meet with welfare organizations to explain and distribute the handbook or help organize new welfare rights groups.

Welfare Answering Service's main source of income is donations from individuals and organizations such as the Iowa Welfare Association. Student Senate appropriated $300 to the answering service last week.

Handbooks are sold for $.15 to low income people and $2 to everyone else. However, according to senior Kathy McElligatt, a student working on the service, there is not enough money to subsidize the printing of more handbooks which are needed.

Next year W.A.S. may hire two students and a director to coordinate the service. An estimated $10,000 will be required for the W.A.S. budget.

Senate action

Welfare Answering Services: $282 left in the Welfare Conference account has been spent so Senate will provide $300 originally planned from its own funds.

Book Coop: Arrangements have been made to send leftover books to the Iowa Men's Reformatory at Anamosa, however action with the prison at Fort Madison is pending further review.

Gun Policy: Suggestions were made to allow guns during the September to February hunting season if registered with head resident of housing unit. Regulations were outlined including carrying cases and safety locks for display purposes. Violations may result in suspension and would be under jurisdiction of the campus hearing board.

Pinball: An attempt will be made to replace the machines which were removed because of damages incurred. Better regulations and signs were discussed.

ISPIRG: Iowa Student Public Interest Research Group was allotted $100 for operating expenses.

New Creation

New Creation, a group of singers from Wartburg Seminary in Dubuque, will lead a non-denominational worship service for the entire Waverly community on Sunday, Feb. 20, at 10:30 a.m. in Buhr Lounge.

Meistersingers to attend clinic

Ten regional high school choirs have accepted invitations to participate in the High School Choral Clinic tomorrow.

Serving as clinician and guest director at a 4 p.m. public concert in Knights Gym will be James Fudge, director of choral activities at Grinnell College.

The sixth of 10 Meistersinger Festivals this year, the clinic includes a day-long schedule of massed rehearsals and small groups instructed by Fudge and Wartburg music faculty members.

Meditator will lecture

Transcendental meditation will be the subject of a lecture given by Greg Cherry, a pupil of the Maharishi Yogi, on Wednesday, Feb. 23, at 8 p.m. in Buhr Lounge.

Transcendental meditation, spreading rapidly across the state since its inception at Iowa City a year ago, is being offered on some campuses as a college credit under the name "Science of Creative Intelligence."

Medical research is now in the process of assessing the effects of transcendental meditation on health, particularly with respect to conditions produced by stressful living.

Trackmen open indoor season

(NEWS BUREAU)

Wartburg College's track team opened the indoor season yesterday in a five-team meet at Grinnell under the leadership of new head coach Gary Gordon.

Yesterday's meet was a five-team affair at Grinnell, with Simpson, Monmouth, Central and Grinnell, and tomorrow's contest will be a triangular at Northfield, Minn., against host St. Olaf and Augustana (Ill.).

The meets will see the debut of Gary Gordon as Wartburg's interim head track coach.

Gordon currently has a 31-man squad working out, including nine lettermen. Several more trackmen are expected to report at the conclusion of the basketball and wrestling season.

Top returning point maker from last season is junior Tom Jenkins of Lorain, O., who holds the school record in the pole vault with a mark of 14'6" and who won that event in the Iowa Conference meet.

Other returning lettermen include Jim Weber, Curt Weber, Jim Ellefson, Bob Mudd, Steve Hotz, Larry Hilden, Marty Rathje and Bruce Coleman.

Gordon admits he knows very little about his squad, except on paper, and that he'll learn a lot during the Knights' indoor schedule.

On basis of past performances and the high school credentials of a number of freshmen, Gordon feels he should be strong in the middle distance and distance events, in a number of relays and in the shot put and pole vault. The rest of the events either lack depth or experience or both. The biggest question marks appear to be the sprints, especially the 100, the long jump, triple jump and discus.

Wrestlers end duals

(NEWS BUREAU)

Wartburg College's wrestling team will close out its dual meet season Thursday and Saturday against a pair of rugged opponents.

The Knights, currently 7-4, will host Luther, 10-6, Thursday night in a 7:30 p.m. meet in Knights Gym and then travel to Winona State, 5-2-1, Saturday night.

The Knights, strapped by injuries the past few weeks, will point to Luther, Walker said, as they try to snap a 10-meet losing streak against the Norse.

Wartburg last defeated Luther 20-11 on Feb. 17, 1962, which will be exactly 10 years to the day on Thursday.

The Knights have had better luck against Winona State, upsetting the Warriors 26-12 last year, but Walker figures the nationally-ranked Minnesota squad to be much stronger this winter. The Warriors snapped Luther 25-6 Wednesday night at Decorah.

WALKER HOPES to have sophomore Steve Blasberg back in the lineup at 134 for the Luther dual, but he may not have his 167-pound grappler, senior Mark Mueller.

Blasberg sustained what was feared to be a broken or cracked clavicle in the All Lutheran Tournament Feb. 5, but it turned out not to be that serious.

Mueller has a possible shoulder separation, suffered in the Knights' 24-12 loss to Upper Iowa Thursday night.

"We got beat by a better team," Walker said, following the loss to UIC.

Cagers clinch share of title

(NEWS BUREAU)

Already assured of at least a share of its sixth straight Iowa Conference championship, Wartburg College's basketball team still needs one more win to claim the title outright.

The Knights, who are 16-2 overall and 10-0 in league play, have four games left in which to come up with that one win, including two on the road this weekend against clubs which took Wartburg right down to the wire at Waverly Jan. 14 and 15.

Those two remaining away games are Central at Pella Friday night and Simpson at Indianola Saturday night. Tip-off time both nights is 7:30.

Both Central, 11-7 overall and 5-5 in the IIAC, and Simpson, 6-11 and 4-6, have been strapped by injuries since last playing Wartburg.

The Flying Dutchmen, at one time or another, have been without the services of forward Dean Duisternars and guard Gordon Graham, and the Redmen have been playing with a hobbled Dennis Engle at center.

"I realize both teams have been up and down in recent weeks," Levick said, "but both proved at our place they can play extremely well. We respect them and anticipate close games both nights."

Wartburg edged Central 79-70 and Simpson 70-64, but both games went down to the last two minutes. The Knights led the Flying Dutchmen by just one point, 65-64, with 2:52 left, and got the stay-ahead lead over the Redmen, 66-64, with just 2:13 remaining.

Wartburg earned its tie for the title the hard way last weekend, particularly against Upper Iowa when the Knights had to come back from 14 points down early in the second half before winning 67-59.

In the 77-62 win over Luther, Levick felt his two big men, Stewart and Waldsten, played "extremely well offensively, defensively and on the boards." Stewart and Waldsten each tallied 17 points in the second half, and those two accounted for 49 points for the whole game. They were also responsible for 23 rebounds between them.

Stewart has averaged 27 points in his last four IIAC games while pulling down 58 rebounds. Those performances have given him the club leadership in scoring and rebounding, moving him ahead of senior forward Dave Platte of Waverly and sophomore forward Fred Waldsten of Storm Lake.
